

The Bank of Colorado Pavilion at the Phillips County Fairgrounds is open for business! Features include a large 160' x 200' arena, pens for all animal species shown at the fair, bleachers for spectators, restrooms, meeting room, storage space, and a commercial kitchen and concession stand.

HISTORY

The existing Phillips County fairgrounds exhibit buildings have served county residents since the late 1940's.

The west beef barn and the horse barn are well beyond their useful life. They, along with the sale arena, the scale house, and the metal structure used to fit cattle, were all removed to make space for the new structure.

COMMUNITY SURVEY

In March of 2014, 71% of County respondents indicated that if funds are available, a new multi-purpose building should be built.

VISION

Phillips County is a small but vibrant county with Colorado pride. Current population is close to 4,300.

Our local economy is based on farming, with our livelihood depending on the abundance of crops raised in the area. In the same manner that we build granaries to store our crops, we have "Raised the Barn", the Bank of Colorado Pavilion at the Phillips County Fairgrounds for the vitality of our county. Working together we raised the BOC Pavilion to provide our county with:

- ◆ A showcase for youth and their projects at the county fair.
- ◆ A much-needed gathering place for our rural communities to learn, grow and prosper.
- ◆ A place to educate the world and ourselves on how to conserve and preserve the land that feeds us.
- ◆ A place for education for all ages.
- ◆ A place to enjoy each other and our guests.

The Bank of Colorado Pavilion is a place of prosperity and growth for the county that we call home.
